SCHOOL · SOPHOMORE

1

Close the Book

Read your notes once, then close the book.

the page is a prop, not a crutch

Write down everything you remember on a blank page.

Then open the notes and fill the gaps in another colour.

2

Mixed Set

Do one from each section, not ten from one.

mixing the kinds is the practice

Switching feels harder because you have to choose what comes next.

Ten in a row feels smooth because the choosing is already done for you.

3

First Question

When the paper lands, read the first question twice.

once for the words, once for the ask

Then write the next thing you can do, not the grade you need.

one action you control

The mark is one number. It is not the whole subject.

4

Ask What Next

Take the marked work to your teacher and ask one question.

Try: what should I do differently on the next piece?

about the work, not about you

Then use one thing from the answer, not all of it at once.

5

Five Minutes

The work you avoid: give it five minutes.

a first step, not the whole task

Open the file, read the task, write one messy sentence.

You can stop at five. Starting is the part you are practising.

6

Where It Shows Up

Pick one idea from science class and find it in your week.

Bread rising. The push when you brake. Both are science.

your example will beat ours

A subject is easier to hold when it touches something you already know.

7

Not Fixed

Being bad at something says where you are, not where you stop.

a starting point can move

The people around you shape what feels possible. Find one who talks about getting better.

Thinking differently is not a grade promise. It changes what you are willing to try.

SCHOOL · SOPHOMORE

8

Phone at the Door

At study time, phone in another room.

out of reach beats face down

Not because the phone is evil. Because every buzz makes you decide again.

Decide once at the start instead of thirty times.

9

One Box

Write tomorrow's school list as one sentence.

Not the week. The first thing after breakfast.

a time and a place

Cross it off when it is done, then stop looking at the list.

GAME DAY · SOPHOMORE

10

One Cue

Pick three words to say before a skill.

short enough to survive the whistle

Pass: hands first. Shot: elbow, follow.

your words will be better

Say it once, then play. A cue is a habit, not a spell.

11

Three Breaths

Before training, take three slow breaths.

Count them. That is the whole practice.

attention is a skill you train

Do it again next session. Short and repeatable beats long and rare.

12

Sleep Is Part of It

A bedtime is part of training.

rest is not the opposite of work

Leave the phone outside the bed so the hour is yours.

one small move

Sleep is not proof you care. It is what lets the body do the work.

13

Same Team

A bad game does not change what you are worth to this team.

the scoreboard is not a verdict on you

It changes what you practise next.

Ask what the game showed you, not what it said about you.

14

Ask the Coach

If a soreness or a slump lasts more than a week, tell your coach.

a rough number, not a rule

For pain that worries you, ask a doctor or a counsellor, not a teammate.

Pushing through is not a personality. It is a decision you can change.

15

The Season Is One Part

The season sits inside your life, not against it.

school and rest are not the enemy

One night a week, do something that is not practice.

choose it before the week fills up

A team that needs you to drop everything is worth asking about.

16

Enjoy the Drill

Pick the drill you like least and find one thing to get better at in it.

small enough to feel this week

Not the score. The touch, the timing, the footwork.

small things you can feel

Getting better is the point you can keep.

17

One Play

After a mistake, name the next play.

one action, now

Not the last one. Not the whole game.

Then say it out loud so your body hears it.

18

Practice the Reset

After a mistake, talk to yourself like a teammate.

would you say it out loud to them?

Try: next ball.

That is a skill you can practise, not a mood you have to wait for.

FEELINGS · SOPHOMORE

19

Name It Plain

When a feeling is loud, give it a plain word.

mad, sad, scared, embarrassed

Write it in one line, not a story.

Naming it does not fix it. It gives you somewhere to stand.

20

What Would a Friend Say?

Think of what you would say to a friend in this exact spot.

same words, same voice

Then say it to yourself, out loud if you can.

You are allowed the kindness you hand out so easily.

21

Tell One Person

Do not carry a hard week alone.

one person is enough to start

Pick the person you would text at 9pm. Tell them one true sentence.

You do not need the whole story ready before you speak.

22

Feelings Are a Skill

Handling a feeling is taught, like a subject.

nobody is born knowing it

Watch one person you trust do it. Ask them what they do.

Then try one small version yourself this week.

23

Tired Is a Feeling Too

Some heavy days are a sleep problem wearing a feeling's coat.

check the simple thing first

Try one earlier night and see what the next day is like.

If the weight stays for weeks, tell a doctor, a counsellor or a trusted adult.

24

Put the Replay Down

Replaying the same scene feels like work. It usually is not.

the loop keeps the sting fresh

When you catch the replay, name what you would do differently next time.

Then put it down until tomorrow.

25

Say It Out Loud

Keeping a hard feeling from the people close to you is not strength.

hiding costs more than it saves

Tell one of them what is actually going on.

You can ask for company without asking them to fix it.

FEELINGS · SOPHOMORE

26

Ask What They Felt

Guessing what someone felt is a skill you can practise.

not a talent some people have

After a fight, ask: what was that like for you?

Listen to the answer without planning your defence.

FEELINGS · SOPHOMORE

27

A Hard Week Is Not You

A hard week is something that happened. It is not who you are.

a week, not a verdict

Write one thing you got through, even badly.

Keep the list where you can see it on the next hard day.

FRIENDS · SOPHOMORE

28

Save the Messages

If messages turn cruel, do not delete them.

keep the evidence

Screenshot the thread and the account name.

Tell a trusted adult: a parent, a coach or a school counsellor.

more than one name is good

Telling will not get you in trouble.

FRIENDS · SOPHOMORE

29

Not a Like Count

How many people liked it is not a measure of you.

the number is about the post, not the person

Write the thing you would post if nobody could see the count.

Post that one instead.

30

Ask, Do Not Assume

When a friend goes quiet, ask before you decide what it means.

the story you invent is rarely the one

Try: you have been quiet. What is going on?

Then listen like you would want to be listened to.

FRIENDS · SOPHOMORE

31

A Friend's Hard Day

You do not have to fix a friend's bad day.

company is the first thing

Ask what would help, then do the small thing they name.

If they are in real danger, tell a trusted adult, even if they asked you not to.

You will not be in trouble for telling.

FRIENDS · SOPHOMORE

32

Their Opinion Is Not a Mirror

Someone else's opinion of you is information about them, not a mirror.

it tells you what they look at

Take the part that helps and leave the rest.

You do not have to argue with it to let it go.

FRIENDS · SOPHOMORE

33

Name the Thing

An apology names the thing you did, not what kind of person you are.

the action, not a label

Try: I took your hoodie without asking. I will ask next time.

Then do the next-time part.

34

Do Not Add to It

When a group chat turns on someone, do not add a joke to the pile.

the pile is the harm

Say one plain line: not funny, leave them alone.

Save the messages.

Tell a trusted adult if it keeps going.

FRIENDS · SOPHOMORE

35

One Friend, One Walk

When your head is full, ask a friend to walk.

side by side is easier than face to face

You do not need a reason to ask.

Twenty minutes counts.

36

Make the Plan First

We should hang out becomes a plan when it has a day.

a day and a time, not a maybe

Text one friend: Saturday, 2pm, the park?

If they say no, ask about next week instead of deciding they do not care.

37

Write It Down

At lunch, pick one step and write it down.
paper beats memory

Look at it again before bed.

One line is enough.

38

Know When It Is Done

A goal needs a finish line you can see.
not do better

Try: run the loop twice without stopping, by Friday.

Then you will know, and so will anyone watching.

39

Attach It to a Habit

Put the new thing next to something you already do.

after brushing, before the bus

One missed day is a missed day, not a restart.

you pick it up at the next anchor

The old habit is the reminder.

40

Hours Are Not the Whole Story

Practice hours help. They are not the whole story.

sleep, coaching and luck count too

Two people can put in the same hours and end up in different places.

What you practise, and how, changes what the hours buy.

GROWING UP · SOPHOMORE

41

You Are Not a Score

You are not a grit score, and neither is anyone else.

it is not a fixed trait

A hard week says what you met, not what you are made of.

The next week can look different without you becoming a different person.

GROWING UP · SOPHOMORE

42

A Hard Week, Met

A hard week is something your body and mind can meet.

not because the stress is good

Sleep, food and one person who knows are not extras. They are the ground.

You do not have to call a hard week good to get through it.

43

One Thing Went Right

Name one small thing that went right today.

smaller than you think

The bus was on time. You sent the text. You drank water.

You do not have to call the whole day good.

44

What Matters to You?

What matters to you is yours to name, not ours to hand you.

the answer can change

Write three things you would protect if you could.

Look at the list in a month and see what moved.

GROWING UP · SOPHOMORE

45

The First Move

When the whole plan feels heavy, cut it down to the first move.

one action you could do today

Then do that, and let the next move wait.

A plan you can start beats a plan you can admire.

AT HOME · SOPHOMORE

46

Phone Outside the Bed

Leave your phone outside the bed tonight.

the hour before sleep is yours

Plug it in across the room.

If you use it as an alarm, a clock in the room does the job.

AT HOME · SOPHOMORE

47

Tell Us the Real Thing

When the answer is fine, fine is not the whole truth.

the word that closes the door

Tell us one real thing about your day, even if it is small.

You do not have to tell us everything to tell us something.

AT HOME · SOPHOMORE

48

One Load, Then Done

When you get home, do one household thing.

dishes, bins, the load in the dryer

Not the whole list. One thing.

Then start the thing you actually want to do.

AT HOME · SOPHOMORE

49

Ask for the Ride

If you need a ride, ask early and say why.

the night before beats the driveway

We can say no and still help you find another way.

Asking is not nagging. It is planning.

AT HOME · SOPHOMORE

50

A Messy Room Is Not You

A messy room is a room, not a verdict on you.

the floor is not your character

Before dinner, pick one surface and clear it.

The rest can wait until it has a home.

AT HOME · SOPHOMORE

51

Say You Need a Night

Some nights you need to be left alone. Say so.

alone for an hour is not the same as gone

We will take the quiet as a request, not a door slam.

Then come back when you are ready.

AT HOME · SOPHOMORE

52

Sunday Dinner Is Ours

Sunday dinner is one hour that does not need a reason.

not a reward for the week

Phones in the bowl, or not. Your call.

The point is the table, not the report card.

53

One Ask at a Time

Ask us for one thing when you need something.

a list turns into a negotiation

Say what it is, when you need it, and what happens if we cannot.

Then we can answer the actual question.
